IN MEMORIAM

Dwight A. Lamplin, who left us December 31, 1974.
Life doesn't seem the same since you were called away
To loose someone that you hold dear,
Is hard to bear.
To see your face to watch your smile,
If only to set with you and talk a while.
To you that have a brother, treat him with love and care.
You never know the value until you see his vacant room.
Sadly missed by,
Mother, Sisters, Brother, and Grandmother

In remembrance of my father, Everett (W.) Pete Martin.
Dear Dad,
It's Christmas time again and I know you're up above. I just want to let you know that I'll always treasure your love. I know I wasn't but four when God called you home, but your memory will always be with me and I will never be alone. As the holiday season passes by and the beginning of a new year I can't help but think of you and shed a few tears.
Miss You,
E. W., Jr.

GOOD NEWS HOMEMAKERS

By Shirley W. Walton Extension Agent

Cash In Your Leftovers

Leftovers aren't important, you say? But I think they are. The wise homemaker and the one who saves on her grocery dollar in today's inflated economy is one who uses wisely her leftovers.
For example, suppose you have two cups of leftover rice. If you add two eggs, some milk and a few raisins, you can make a rice pudding big enough to serve four people at a very small cost. This is also a nutritious dessert in addition to a good meal.
Many homemakers will save leftover vegetables. These should not be saved in the refrigerator, but if you know that you have a small amount, for example one-half to one cup of vegetables left over from a meal, and if it is something that can go in a soup mixture, put it in the freezer and freeze it. Then on soup making day, these frozen vegetables can be put into your soup mixture. This is a good way to save and also to make good use of leftovers.
Suppose you have a cup of green peas left over. Add some chopped onions and celery, a small amount of salad dressing, and these can be served on shredded lettuce, or they may even be mixed with some creamed potatoes. Think of what a colorful nice combination you would have.
I'd like to look at some categories now of how you can use these leftovers:
Beef - One of the best ways to handle leftover beef is to make hash. Creamed bits of beef on toast are delicious. Ground beef with a cut of fresh onion, mixed with salad dressing on a bed of lettuce is no ordinary sandwich, or small slices of beef can be left on an open-faced sandwich and decorated with pimento or green pepper slivers for company. Beef can also be diced and used with vegetables, gravy, pastries or biscuit topping to make a deep-dish pie.
Ham - Even a small amount of ham chipped into any cheese dish will enhance its food value and put it in the party-dish class. Ground and mixed with chopped sweet pickle and salad dressing, ham makes wonderful sandwiches. These can be decorated and left open-faced with sliced stuffed olives for the company or a party. Baked ham scraps overtop of scalloped potatoes is quite delicious. Nothing makes scrambled eggs more delicious as those good rich tasting ham scraps left from the Christmas ham.
Chicken - Remove from bones, chop and cream and dot with parsley and serve over hot biscuits or toast. Chop the white meat with celery, chives, green olives and add salad dressing for chicken salad. Some people like sweet pickle rather than the olives. Add bits of chicken to a bacon and tomato sandwich. Cook together leftover scraps of chicken with meaty bones and two chicken bullion cubes. Then you can remove the bones, add stewed vegetables and drop dumplings for a complete luncheon dish. Also, it's good to save having leftovers if you will know that you are going to only prepare the meaty parts of a chicken, such as the breasts, legs and thighs, for your meal. You can freeze the wings and back portions and use those later in January to make a good pot of stew.
Fish - Remove skin and bones from left over fish while still warm. Mix fish with mashed potatoes, salt, pepper, butter and chopped parsley. These can be moistened with egg and shaped into flat cakes. Dip the cakes in egg and saute in butter. This makes delicious fish cakes and they are very similar to salmon cakes.
Bread - Many times we throw away scraps of bread, but if we would break our bread scraps into crumbs while they are still soft and store in a plastic bag for later use in bread puddings, poultry dressing, souffles and breaded chops, we will find ourselves saving money. To make fine crumbs out of this bread, roll dry bread with rolling pin. We can store our crumbs for a short time outside of the freezer, but I find it easier to store it in the freezer since it is as I need it. To make your dry bread crumbs, put the broken bread crumbs on a cookie sheet in the oven and dry them out at 250 degrees for about 30 minutes. This is a good way to make use of these crumbs, and also save on the grocery dollar.
Vegetables - Root vegetables can be used with left over meat. Cooked dried beans, mashed with catsup makes a surprisingly good sandwich. Left-over corn makes a great corn pudding, or the left-over corn can be mixed with lima beans and make a good dish of succotash. Corn can also be added to muffin batter or cornbread batter to make delicious corn fritters. Corn is also excellent fried with a skillet full of fried potatoes. Left-over sweet potatoes can be mashed and used like pumpkin to make a delicious pie.
Fruits - Collect juice and broken bits of canned fruits in the refrigerator until there is enough to make a gelatin dessert. Cook the fresh fruit at the first sign of spoilage. Pudding make by dropping sweetened dumpling batter on top of the boiling fruit and steaming until done, for about 15 minutes, is also delicious. I know that most of you have the basic fruit pit recipe where you can make a dumping type pie using most any kind of fruit that you have.
Homemakers, as you are busy using your leftovers wisely from the Christmas holidays, I wish to extend each of you best wishes for a joyous and prosperous New Year. It has been a genuine pleasure to work with you during 1977. The Appomattox County Extension Staff is ready to help you with any question or problem that you might have. If we can ever help you in any way, please call us at 352-8244 or write us at P. O. Box 488. It is always a pleasure to hear from you.
Happy New Year!

RECIPE OF THE WEEK
1 stick cinnamon
1 tbsp. whole cloves
1 c. sugar
1 qt. water
Juice of 3 lemons and oranges (or substitute ½ c. concentrate and ½ c. unmade orange juice concentrate
1 No. 2 can pineapple juice
1 qt. strong tea
Put cinnamon and cloves in cheesecloth; place in saucepan with sugar and water, bring to boil and boil 15 minutes. Remove spices and add remaining ingredients. Heat and serve. Makes 2 qts.
(Note: A special word of appreciation is due to Mrs. Mary Grey Holland for sharing her daughter's recipe with us. This is delcious hot drink to serve your guests during the holidays or during the cold winter months.)
